

Developing Future Leaders Today

Two things remain constant: the changing nature of Chapel Hill and Carrboro, and the need for leadership to help anticipate and navigate through that change. Leadership Chapel Hill-Carrboro is designed to better equip our current pool of talented leaders for a changing future. Not only will participants be challenged to look within themselves to examine their leadership skills and potential, they will also exchange ideas with today's leaders concerning the social, cultural, political, and economic facets of the community.

Leadership participants also complete the Leadership "Passport," an agenda of community projects and exercises, as well as the Small Miracles® project, which pairs Leadership students with area non-profit organizations to learn about their missions and to implement a fundraising plan to meet specific needs of those organizations.
